Details

Andrew lost his children, his family, his job as an attorney, his sanity and was sentenced to five years in federal prison — But he's back, moving the ball forward a little every day, achieving stable success through helping others to understand that they will get through tough times, rise above the mind noise, and lead happy fulfilling lives. Spreading this message to schools, colleges, rehabilitation groups, veterans, professional organizations, drug courts, and others has allowed Andrew to engage others in an uplifting, positive way, inspiring people to work through difficult times. He was determined as soon as the chains of opiate addiction lifted to turn his downfall into a positive, and this is what he's done.
